

ENTERTAINMENT INDUSTRIES COUNCIL ANNOUNCES 2015 PRISM AWARD NOMINEES

Still Alice, St. Vincent, Mom, Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D., Law and Order: SVU, Louie, Grey's Anatomy, Elementary, Arrow, Chicago Fire, Pretty Little Liars* among Nominees

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (March 18, 2015): Today the Entertainment Industries Council (EIC) announced the nominees for the 19th Annual PRISM Awards, which honors actors, writers, directors and producers for their authentic storytelling of people living with or recovering from mental health and substance use challenges. The PRISM Awards are at the heart of EIC's mission to bring the power and influence of entertainment and news media to communicate about important health and social issues

"It is the authentic portrayal of mental health and substance abuse challenges that fosters conversation amongst vast audiences, reduces discrimination and fear around these illnesses and encourages supportive, help-seeking behavior when viewers more clearly understand what mental illness and addiction really looks like," said Brian Dyak, President and CEO, EIC. "Julianne Moore's Academy Award winning portrayal of a woman dealing with early-onset Alzheimer's disease in Still Alice is one of the many examples of how the entertainment industry is utilizing its influence and craft to bring these stories and issues out from the shadows and make it okay to talk."

This year's nominees portrayed such issues as: addiction, treatment and recovery (alcohol, painkillers, marijuana, heroin, cocaine, tobacco, and gambling); mental illness (depression, bipolar disorder, PTSD, schizophrenia, eating disorders, self-mutilation, and suicide); and brain conditions (Alzheimer's, autism, and brain injury).

PRISM Award nominees are selected and voted upon by a Nomination Review Committee which consists of more than 80 representatives of both the entertainment industry and health care fields. Submissions are scored based on their accuracy, understandability of the message, and entertainment value.
